

CSUH Music Department Celebrates Women's Works In Series of Free Recitals

By Kristen Daniels
Staff Writer

In celebration of Women's History Month, the Cal State Hayward Music Department will present three days of free recitals featuring classical music by women composers.

All "Musica delle Donne" performances will be held in MB 1055.

The annual series is held every March and was originally arranged in 1995 by Deborah Hamouris, a CSUH alumna with a music major and a women's study minor. The program is now organized by Marianna Wolff, also a CSUH music department alumna.

"Historical contributions by women composers are still often ignored in music history courses across the country," said Wolff.

The goal of "Musica delle Donne" is to educate music patrons about women's contributions to classical music.

The first performance, held Wednesday, was "An Evening of Cecile Chaminade," a French composer and pianist known for her graceful, romantic piano pieces.

There will be a faculty recital today at noon. Then, at 8 p.m., the CSUH Chamber Singers, CSUH faculty members, students and guests will perform music composed by CSUH alumna Terri Schmit.

Schmit's composition, which highlights flute, viola and guitar, will be premiered.

The Women's Philharmonic Woodwind Quintet, whose members come from the only professional orchestra of women in the United States, will perform works by Claude Arrieu (Marie-Louise Simon), Phyllis Addison, Amy Beach, Katherine Hoover and Ruth Crawford Seeger, Friday, March 7, at 8 p.m.
